Bees are one of the many insects in the world that can produce something that is beneficial to all of us. We obtain honey from these bees and as we all know, honey is an important food for human beings. Apiculture is the act of rearing honeybees. Apiary is an area where a large number of beehives can be placed. Here in MPS, the bees are taken care of and managed to produce wax and honey. Our students are also having the first-hand experience to learn about Apiculture. Recently we extracted a big jar of honey.
